In this triumphant legend, love transcends language, time and place. While Manhattan's west side rumbles with the clash of Jets and Sharks, Maria and Tony seek "a somewhere" their romance can thrive.

In their revolutionary work that changed the course of the American musical, Bernstein, Sondheim and Laurent's bring their award winning genius to the immortal story of star-crossed lovers caught in a turf war of rival ethnic gangs.

About the play –

Songs for a New World first hit the stage in an off-Broadway production at the WPA Theatre in NYC in 1995. Pushing the boundary between musical and song cycle, this piece is connected more by theme than narrative. Traditionally a song cycle is a group of songs that are by the same composer or the same lyricist and are designed to be performed as a whole. They often rely on narrative or the creation of a persona that is common to the songs. Song cycles began with Ludwig von Beethoven in 1816, but are certainly a feature of contemporary composition in both the symphonic and pop realms. Pink Floyd's The Dark Side of the Moon is a classic example.
